

I do not think that relaxing the number of media outlets a company can own is in my best interest, nor do I think it is in the public's best interest. Our media is rather homogenous now, letting them fulfill their urge to become fewer and fewer in number, is I think, a bad idea.

And if you do relax the rules so that they can merge, I hope you are working with a lot better information than I am, and have taken a serious look at what the media landscape will look like 20-50 years down the road.

Thanks for your time,
